

More Ways To Save

Dear Tim:

In this economy I've been looking at every possible way to save. We skipped the family vacation this summer. I'm visiting the salon less. My husband is avoiding the golf course. And the kids are waiting for swimming invites from their friends since we're doing without pool passes this year. I don't want to do without everything we enjoy, but I want to get the most bang for our buck when we do spend. Any suggestions?

Dear Saver:

Doing without some of your usual luxuries is a disciplined way to save. Unfortunately, food is not a luxury. That's why we're finding new ways to help you save. Like our Twitter specials. Sign up to follow the Huffman's Market Twitter feed (twitter.com/huffmansmarket) and we'll send daily specials and other exclusive offers right to your account. It's like getting free money over the Internet. The other thing that's good to do is find small ways to treat yourself and your family now and then. Like springing for ice cream (like our fabulous Flavor Burst soft serve). It will keep your spirits up and remind you to appreciate the little things in life.

Dear Tim:

I was out of town for this year's Ohio State Fair. What did I miss?

-Gone on Glenn

Dear Gone:

For starters, you missed me. But more importantly you missed the atmosphere, the rides, the food and the butter cow. This year she was accompanied by three generations of a farm family in tribute to Ohio's dairy farmers. But don't worry, you didn't miss everything. We've still got some succulent spring lamb from this year's fair in our meat department. But you're out of luck on the elephant ears.
