

Snippy About Snow

DEAR
TIM

Dear Tim:

Any idea why we've had so little snow so far this season? We didn't have a white Christmas and it's looking like we may not have snow by Valentine's Day. I thought we were supposed to get buried this winter.

-Snowman on Mannboro

Dear Snowman:

I don't really follow the almanac, so I don't know if we're supposed to get a lot of snow this season or not. Unlike a lot of people, though, I'm not complaining. If it were up to me, it would only snow Christmas Eve, Christmas Day and that's it. And it would never snow on streets or sidewalks. I know that means we'll sell a lot less firewood (out front) and Advil (aisle 5), but I'm OK with that.

Dear Tim:

I hear they're casting for the next season of Dancing With The Stars. Are you in?

-Dance Fan on Danvers

Dear Dance Fan:

As a viewer, yes. As a cast member, no. First because Glenda won't let me hang around with female dancers anymore. And second because I don't have any shelf space for the mirror ball trophy at the store. We'd have to take down the dessert display in the meat department and you know that's not happening.
