

Shocked By TV Talk

Dear Tim:

Is it me, or is there more and more salty language on television these days? I understand a lot of it gets bleeped, but the stuff they're letting through any more still surprises me.

-Shocked on Shadywood

DEAR
TIM

Dear Shocked:

Nothing surprises me anymore. Other than my insurance premiums. Holy *#@&! I think we just have to get used to the fact that times are changing. What used to be considered offensive is now more common and therefore more accepted. That doesn't mean you have to like it. If you think the language is too salty, change the channel. Try PBS or the Hallmark Channel. They keep it pretty clean. So does Xochitl. They're these thin, crispy, all-natural, Mexican-style tortilla chips we started carrying. They have just the right amount of salt. And it's sea salt, so there's nothing to be offended by. Give 'em a try. Aisle 6.

---

Dear Tim is presented as a public service by Tim Huffman, owner of Huffman's Market. Write to him in care of Huffman's Market, 2140 Tremont Center, Upper Arlington, Ohio, 43221, stop by and say hi, or visit www.huffmansmarket.com.