

Scrambled About Easter Eggs

Dear Tim:

I've never quite understood the concept of the Easter egg hunt. Were people just trying to get rid of eggs that had gone bad over the winter and looking for a fun way to do it?

-Egghead on Edington

Dear Egghead:

I tend to doubt it. Besides, if you were trying to get rid of bad eggs, wouldn't you hide them in someone else's yard?

The way I understand it, the Germans saw bunny eggs as a sign of the rebirth and renewal of spring. They even built nests where bunnies could lay them. When they came to America, they brought the tradition with them in the form of Easter egg hunts. If you're carrying on that tradition this weekend, (gently) pick up a dozen or two of our locally-sourced, farm-fresh eggs in the dairy case at the back of aisle 1. Buy them today and dye them tonight. Happy Easter!

DEAR
TIM

---

Dear Tim is presented as a public service by Tim Huffman, owner of Huffman's Market. Write to him in care of Huffman's Market, 2140 Tremont Center, Upper Arlington, Ohio, 43221, stop by and say hi, or visit www.huffmansmarket.com.