

Golden Bear Goodbye

Dear Tim:

I read that the greatest golfer of the 20th Century and Upper Arlington's most famous former resident will be hanging up the wrenches after this year. Say it ain't so.

—Jack Fan on Jervis

Dear Jack Fan:

I'm afraid I can't say it ain't so. He announced as much last month and didn't give any indication he'd changed his mind during the Memorial. After 44 years and 18 major championships, Jack Nicklaus is retiring from tournament golf after next month's British Open at famed St. Andrews. As I'm sure you agree, he's a credit to his family, our community and his sport. And though we'll miss his Sunday strolls up the 18th fairway, he's leaving us with lots of great stories and memories. His historic run at the Masters in '86 made all of us feel a little younger. In honor of the Golden Bear's last growl, we're featuring beers of the British Isles. Try Belhaven St. Andrew Ale and Morland Tanner's Jack. Both are fitting brews to hoist in honor of a great sportsman, and you'll find both in aisle 1 – an appropriate place for a champion of the first order.

DEAR TIM

Dear Tim:

My son just graduated from college with honors and is about to start his career in banking. Needless to say, we're very proud of him. Could you mention his name in your column? All our friends read it, and I'm sure his new employer would appreciate the plug.

—Proud Mom on Prestwick

Dear Proud Mom:

Unlike Star Jones and Burt Reynolds, I don't do plugs. But since your kid sounds like the kind who uses his melon, I'd be happy to carve his name into one of our fine seedless watermelons from aisle 1. It's something your friends can read and his new employer can enjoy. Consider it a graduation gift.

Dear Tim:

How chunky is your chunky chicken salad?

—Chicken Lover on Charing

Dear Chicken Lover:

It's so chunky that if it were funky, it would be James Brown.

Dear Tim is presented as a public service by Tim Huffman, owner of Huffman's Market. Write to him in care of Huffman's Market, 2140 Tremont Center, Upper Arlington, Ohio, 43221 or at www.huffmansmarket.com. Or bring this ad in for $1.00 off your next purchase of any meal from the Huffman's In A Hurry case.